

Facts about Topazery

Topazery is a leading resource on the Internet for a meticulously curated collection of vintage and antique jewelry.

- Founded by Jan Walden, who enjoys a life-long passion for jewelry and who has a discerning eye for vintage and antique creations
- Jan holds the Accredited Jewelry Professional diploma from the Gemological Institute of America (GIA); she is also GIA certified in Diamond Grading, Colored Stone Grading and Pearl Grading
- Jan has traveled and networked all over the U.S. and internationally, hand picking each piece in the Topazery curated collection
- The Topazery website was launched in 2002 as www.topazery.com, one of the first online resources for vintage and antique jewelry
- Topazery has played a lead role in responding to growing consumer demand for authentic vintage and antique jewelry; as a pioneer in the sale of vintage and antique jewelry online, Topazery has helped to set the standards for ethical practices

- The Topazery team includes a master jeweler, who evaluates and gently restores vintage and antique pieces; a Certified Gemologist Appraiser, who appraises each piece; professional photographers, who assure the most detailed images possible; a webmaster to keep the website fresh; and communications professionals
- Professional appraisals and detailed professional photography of each piece are Topazery hallmarks
- Topazery features both vintage (post-1930) and antique (pre-1930) jewelry in a collection that spans all types of jewelry, with a concentration of engagement rings; the oldest piece in the Topazery collection dates to 1870
- Topazery launched a Learning Center on its website in 2016 to enhance consumer knowledge of vintage and antique jewelry; more than 30 different learning modules are included